Spiritual Disciplines Guide

Week of June 25, 2023

The last few weeks of our study of Chronicles we are correlating the writings of some of the prophets with the times and the kings of Chronicles. Last week we looked at Joel and Micah. This week let's look at the messages of Habakkuk, Zephaniah and Jeremiah. Habakkuk and Zephaniah are short books that can be read in one setting. Jeremiah contains much more material pertinent to the Judean kings. We'll divide up those chapters and read a part this week and the rest next week.

The prophet Habbakuk asks God a series of questions about his justice. Why does he not punish wickedness in Judah? God's response is that he will, through the Babylonians. Habakkuk complains that the Babylonians are more evil than Israel! God calls him and his people to trust in his justice, his timing, his plans and his mercy. All will work out in the end. (Psalm 46:10)

In Zephaniah, the prophet predicts judgement against Judah and Jerusalem due to their idolatry. His books calls the nation to repentance and to seek God while he may be found. He finishes his book with the assurance of restoration and a surviving remnant. The key phrase in Zephaniah is "the day of the Lord is coming".
