Old Testament
Week of July 18, 2021

As you read Job, notice much of what is said is true and accurate in relation to God's character, human nature and sufferings. There's a lot of "humanity" in Job's account. There is also a lot of assumptions made by Job's counselors that aren't necessarily true. It is for these things that God will finally admonish Job's friends in the final chapter of the book.

Psalms 21-30 continue with both praise and lament psalms. Psalm 22 is a classic messianic psalm predicting the innocent suffering and death of the coming Christ. Note Jesus quotes Psalm 22 verse 1 from the cross as an explanation for what his onlookers were about to observe. Powerful words poetically predicting the substitutionary atonement made by Jesus at Calvary on our behalf!
