Old Testament

Week of March 6, 2022

This week we will finish reading the book of Acts. Luke's record of the Acts (Actions) of the Apostles covers approximately 30 years of history, beginning in the year Christ died, rose and ascended and ending up with the Apostle Paul's imprisonment in Rome around 65 AD.

We pick up reading this week with the third missionary journey of Paul and his companions starting in Ephesus in Asia Minor and traveling to Macedonia, Achaia and Greece. From there, he backtracks all the way back to Jerusalem.

As was predicted by the Holy Spirit, Paul faces major persecution from the Jews in Jerusalem and is again taken prisoner and held captive for several years in Caesarea. While in prison, he is tried by the Roman Governors Felix, Festus and Agrippa. It is during this imprisonment that Paul writes several of his church Epistles. The final chapters of Acts record Paul's treacherous journey from Caesarea to Italy where he ends up under house arrest in Rome for another two years. Though Acts does not record this, it is likely that Paul is released from bondage and enjoys one last period of freedom before he is eventually arrested and executed in Rome under the Emperor Nero.
