New Testament

Week of March 20, 2022

We continue our reading this week in mid-Matthew, chapters 11-20. As the Sabbath controversy heightens over Jesus' healings on the day of rest, Jesus switches the main emphasis of his ministry from healings and public displays of power to parables and more private instruction of his disciples.

Even so, Matthew records numerous miracles of Jesus in this middle section including the feeding of the five and four thousand, healings by the sea of Galilee and restoring sight to a blind man at Jericho. Chapter 13 contains several of Jesus' classic kingdom parables on the Kingdom of God. Plenty of food for thought in this chapter!

Chapter 17 records Jesus' transfiguration where he fulfills his prediction to his disciples in the previous chapter (16:28) and gives Peter, James and John a glimpse of the coming glory of the Kingdom. Matthew refers to the kingdom of heaven/ the kingdom of God over fifty times in his gospel. His main premise in writing is to present Jesus as the long awaited King from heaven who comes to rule the nation and the world. He is the literal answer to the Lord's prayer. In Jesus, God's kingdom comes and his will is done on earth (in a person) as it is in heaven!
