Old Testament

Week of May 9, 2021

As we continue in the book of 1 Samuel, the prophet Samuel anoints Saul as the first king of Israel. Saul immediately sets to work to liberate Israel from the neighboring Ammonites. He establishes an army with the help of his son, Jonathan, and builds national allegiance to his throne. Even so, his heart is not true to God, so God sends Samuel to anoint the next king, David. As a young man, David establishes himself in Saul's army as a captain of the guard. He also distinguishes himself from Saul by his spiritual integrity. At this point, the book becomes a saga as Saul's jealousy of David drives him to seek to take his life. David goes on the run and valiant men rally to him. The book ends with Saul's final decline and death. Chapters 10-24 cover a forty year period of King Saul's reign in Israel.
