

Spiritual Disciplines Guide

Week of November 6, 2022

There is an excellent example of Psalm types in our readings this week. Remember, not all Psalms are praise psalms. Some are historic psalms, psalms of complaint, cries for help and some are psalms of thanksgiving. Pay close attention to the theme of each psalm as you read this week. Don't be afraid to write above the heading what Psalm type it is. Some samples from this week will include Psalm 18 -- a praise psalm; Psalm 21 -- a royal psalm; Psalm 22 -- a prophetic psalm; Psalm 26 -- a complaint psalm; Psalm 30 -- a psalm of thanksgiving. As you begin to perceive the types of psalms there are and their themes, you will be better able to relate specific Psalms to your life and meditate on them according to your circumstances. Then the book of Psalms will truly become a devotional book for you, one you can turn to for comfort, support or hope according to your own life situations. As David says in Psalm 19:7-8, God's word revives the soul, makes people wise and gives joy to the heart! May that be your experience as you study and apply the Psalms.
